114 firms. The jobs. The calls.

Eight UK sectors, every firm checked on its own site, its filed accounts or a live vacancy. The repeating job in each, the person who owns that cost, and the words to use. This is the working document, not a brochure.

Make one call today

Forty minutes. That is what you have if you want money this week, so the order below is chosen for speed to a yes, not for market size.

CALL 1 — THE FASTEST YES IN THE BOOK

Hurley Group. Ten GP practices, one central services team, and a Director of Operations, Paula Saunders, who can authorise a £1,500 pilot without asking anybody. The job is referral triage: sort inbound letters and e-Referral actions, book or redirect, log the outcome. Ten practices produce that in volume and it never stops. Ring the main switchboard, ask for the Director of Operations by name, and open with: “I’ve read that your central team handles referrals for all ten practices. I want two weeks and one job to show you what comes back.”

Then, in this order: Kimpton (106 staff, Tim Davis is the MD and the meeting is the decision) · Jackson Lee Underwriting (17 people, Mark McLaren owns systems and operations) · Rouse Partners (Leighton Bower is Managing Partner, two payroll managers share one queue) · Charles Hunter Associates (Abby Bryant is Operations Director and compliance is the whole business) · Robert Heath Heating (Neil James owns engineer scheduling and the annual service round).

Why these six first: each has a single named person who can say yes, a job that repeats every week and can be counted, and no group procurement committee standing between the call and the pilot. That is the entire qualification test. Size is not the test — a 1,800-person claims firm can take nine months to decide, and a 17-person MGA can decide on Thursday.

What we are actually selling

A digital employee has three parts, and none of them is a chatbot.

The Brain. The client’s rules, prices, tone, exceptions and past decisions, held in one place and isolated per client. It does not reset between conversations, and it does not invent a memory to fill a gap.

The Employee. One job with a written definition: what goes in, what comes out, what it must never do, when it stops and asks a human. That definition is the product. A general assistant has no job, which is why nobody can be accountable for what it produces.

The Desk. It works through the screens the client already owns — the case management system, the broking platform, the payroll software, the insurer portal, Outlook. No API, no migration, no two-year integration project. The first job is live in about two hours, which is the only reason a two-week pilot is credible.

THE DISTINCTION THAT MATTERS IN THE ROOM

ChatGPT, Grok, Muse and Claude are general assistants sold per seat. No knowledge of the firm, no permissions, no audit trail, no escalation rule, and nobody accountable when the output is wrong. That is a different product, not a cheaper one. The honest sentence is: the model is fuel, and it is swappable. The value is the memory, the job definition, the permissions and the verification around it.

How to price it without arguing

Never price against a subscription. Price against the salary the work currently sits on, because that is the budget line the client already has.

One UK admin on £28,000, loaded at 25% for employer NI, pension and overhead, costs £35,000 a year — £2,917 a month, £17.95 an hour, for about 1,950 working hours. That is the comparator. A £750-a-month Foundation workflow is 26% of one hire. A £5,000-a-month desk is £60,000 a year and has to replace roughly 1.7 salaries, or add £60,000 of revenue, to make sense.

SAY THIS BEFORE THEY DO

“Compare it to the person doing it now, not to a software licence. This is the cost of one and a half of those people, and it does not sleep, does not forget and leaves an audit trail.”

The market check is uncomfortable and worth knowing: the UK managed-agent band sits at £750–£2,000 a month per role (Ajairu from £750, Tenaxity £1,250, Locate AI £2,000 flat). At £5,000 for a single role, a finance director has three published comparables that undercut us by 60–85%. Two ways to answer that. Either sell the £5,000 as a three-role bundle — the human comparator is two VA seats at £10,352 a month, so it is a 52% discount to human cover — or move the single-role entry price down and let the bundle carry the margin. That is a decision for Tyson, not for a deck. Until it is made, no document in this book states a price as final.

THE ANCHOR THAT NEEDS NO TRUST

Big Four published G-Cloud day rates run £450 to £2,750 a day (Deloitte, PwC UK, KPMG all publish cards). One month of any Twinthos desk is cheaper than two days of a Big Four consultant, and the client can check that themselves in ten seconds. Tenhaw charges £44,000 for an agentic readiness audit and publishes it, which proves buyers will pay for a scoped first stage.

The register

Every firm below was verified on 21 October 2026. The evidence for each is its own website, its filed accounts at Companies House, or a vacancy it was advertising that day. Where a firm was advertising the exact role the work sits on, that is the strongest possible signal: the cost is already budgeted and the queue is already too long.

A word on health, because it matters. A competitor’s view is that UK and US healthcare are harder industries to sell into, and the caution is right for the regulated core: patient data is special-category under UK GDPR Article 9, providers answer to CQC, NHS work runs through DSPT and DTAC, and a small vendor without those artefacts stalls in procurement. Section six of this book keeps the healthcare names but ranks them last and states the gate in writing. The sectors to work first are the ones where the data is commercially sensitive but not statutorily special, and where one operations director signs.

Legal — 13 firms

SECTION ONE

The post-completion desk is the cleanest sale in the book: the work is identical on every file, the client is already paying someone to do it, and the failure is measured by a third party.

HM Land Registry recorded 39,967 SDLT-related requisition numbers in the year to 2025, 2.46% of all requisitions and the highest share of the four years covered. 19,425 of those were raised because there was no Land Transaction Return certificate or submission receipt on file. Each one is a reopened file, a client call and a resubmission. At the same time the capacity to absorb it is thinner: Access Legal counts 10,724 solicitors practising in conveyancing, down more than 2,000 since 2021, with average exchange-to-completion at 123 days.

Two related queues run on the same desk: KYC and source-of-funds on every new instruction (HMLR's October 2026 review names "evidence of identity not supplied" as the most common single avoidable requisition point), and, in personal injury and clinical negligence, medical records chasing — request, check completeness, upload, paginate, to an SLA.

THE MONEY

£29,375 per clerk-year — Fletchers advertises the post-completion role at £24,479 plus 20% employer on-cost. An eight-person post-completion team is £235,000 a year. One desk at £60,000 covers the work of about six of them (6 × £29,375 = £176,250), a net saving of £116,249 in year one before counting the requisitions that stop being raised twice.

Hall Brown Family Law 5 offices, 15 partners, 32 assistant solicitors	Onboarding, AML and source-of-funds through to disclosure schedule	James Brown — Managing Partner

The words. “Your post-completion team does the same sequence on every file: file the SDLT return, send the AP1, answer the requisition. We put one managed employee on that sequence, working through the case management screens you already own. Start with the £1,500 two-week pilot on 50 live files — measure requisitions raised and cycle time before anyone’s headcount changes.”

Insurance — 12 firms

SECTION TWO

Renewals stopped being cheap the day the pricing rules changed. That switch is the whole pitch, and it is dated and checkable.

Since the FCA's general insurance pricing practices rules (PS21/11) a renewal price cannot exceed the equivalent new business price. Renewals now carry close to new-business admin: a UK broker workflow study puts renewal re-marketing at 3–5 hours per handler per week, spiking in renewal season. On top of that, ICOBS requires a demands-and-needs statement, evidenced, for every policy sold or renewed — 2–4 hours per handler per week drafting, checking and filing. Mid-term adjustments arrive all week rather than in batches, and each one needs a premium recalculation, an endorsement and an insurer confirmation chased by email.

The judgement has to stay with a qualified person under ICOBS and Consumer Duty. So the promise is never "replaces the broker". It is "removes the blank page and the re-keying, and stops for approval before anything reaches a client".

THE MONEY

A fully loaded account handler at £30 an hour, 45 working weeks, 20 handlers on the same repeating job: renewal re-marketing at 4 hours each is £108,000 a year; demands-and-needs at 3 hours is £81,000; MTA processing at 2.5 hours is £67,500; first-notification triage and chasing at 4.5 hours is £121,500. One desk at £60,000 covers three of those budgets at once. Per handler, 4 hours a week of renewal admin costs £5,400 a year, so the £1,500 pilot only has to return about 50 hours to break even.

UNA Alliance 5 member brokers, ~1,200 staff, three-person central office	Consolidating five brokers’ systems for insurer and group reporting	Tim Ryan — Executive Chairman

The words. “Your renewal desk re-quotes every policy because the rules say a renewal can’t be priced above new business. That is new-business work for renewal money. One employee drafts the comparison and the demands-and-needs pack for a handler to approve — nothing reaches a client without your signature.”

Accountancy — 13 firms

SECTION THREE

Payroll bureaux are about to be handed a million new filers. The constraint is not software, it is the monthly chase for client data. Making Tax Digital for Income Tax extends to sole traders and landlords above £30,000 from 6 April 2027 — around 1,077,000 more taxpayers, and HMRC is publicly urging them to sign up now. The second quarterly update for the £50,000+ group was due 7 November 2026, with agents already chasing outstanding first updates. Mandatory payrolling of benefits in kind begins in phases from 6 April 2027, moving valuations out of the annual P11D cycle into every payroll run. Mandatory tax adviser registration for payroll agents opens 18 November 2026, which means client-by-client authorisations to set up and maintain.

Underneath all of it sits the same failing step, described by the firms themselves: client-prepared payroll information that arrives late or wrong, and a bureau that re-asks the same contacts every period.

THE MONEY

ONS ASHE (April 2025) puts median full-time gross earnings at £39,039. A £60,000 desk therefore costs about 1.54 times the median full-time salary before employer NIC, pension and overhead — so the case has to be one and a half roles, or one and a half avoided hires. That bar is reachable where the chase is split across a payroll team, an accounts team and partners' PAs rather than sitting in one job title, which is exactly the pattern in a multi-office practice.

The words. “Every period your payroll team asks the same clients for the same information, and every period some of it arrives late. One desk owns that request and the follow-up, on a schedule, and hands your team a clean input list. It runs before the bureau, not instead of it.”

Recruitment — 19 firms

SECTION FOUR

Compliance is per-candidate, per-document and date-stamped. Timesheets gate payroll. Both are counted in hours, which makes them easy to sell and easy to prove.

Social work, healthcare and education placements cannot start until DBS, right-to-work, professional registration and mandatory training are evidenced, each with its own expiry date. Temporary work adds a weekly timesheet chase before payroll cut-off, then a re-key into invoicing. Candidate submission packs have to be rebuilt into each client’s template before a CV can go anywhere, and job boards have to be refreshed as a vacancy ages.

The structural tell is the ratio. Sellick Partnership runs 65 fee-earners against 29 back-office staff; Jane Lewis lists onboarding, compliance, managed services and back office as four separate teams. Nobody built that org chart because they wanted to.

THE MONEY

Using Hays' FY25 figure of about £160,200 of fee income per recruiter per year, a 20-consultant desk generates roughly £3.20m of gross fee capacity. Assume 20% of a consultant's week goes to admin (a stated assumption, not a measured figure): that is about £641,000 of capacity. Recover a quarter of it and you have roughly £160,000 a year against a £60,000 desk — 2.7x, before faster timesheet-to-invoice cycles and fewer compliance-expiry misses.

Property — 15 firms

SECTION FIVE

Three dated legal changes landed on every tenancy file in the same eighteen months. That is a forced, budgeted workload, and it is being absorbed by temporary heads right now.

The Renters' Rights Act took effect on 1 May 2026: all assured shorthold tenancies became assured periodic tenancies, and an information sheet had to be served by 31 May 2026 — every legacy file needed re-papering, and renewals now run on a rolling basis. Deposit registration and prescribed information remain a hard 30-day deadline per tenancy. EPC C is required for all tenancies by 1 October 2030 (new tenancies from 2028), so every unit needs a remediation plan. Awaab's Law Phase 2 timescales land 30 November 2026 in the social sector, with the private rented sector extension in train, which tightens repair-response evidence.

On top of that, the routine: referencing and right-to-rent follow-up per let, maintenance triage and contractor booking per ticket, certificate expiry per property, arrears sequences per tenancy per month, and landlord statements across thousands of accounts.

THE MONEY

At one minute per property per month of administrative work — a stated assumption — TPFG's 149,000 managed properties equal 15.5 FTE, Connells' 165,000 tenancies 17.2 FTE, and LRG's 73,000 or Lomond's 72,000 about 7.5 FTE each. A London property administrator sits at £26,222 (Indeed average, 195 salaries, September 2026) and £28,000–£35,000 with 3–5 years' experience per People4Property's 2026 guide; loaded at 1.18x that is £31,000–£41,300. So one desk costs the same as 1.4 to 1.9 administrators, and the case has to be volume across a branch cluster, not a straight headcount swap.

Get Living PLC 6,200+ homes for rent across seven neighbourhoods (Get Living, April 2026); new CEO Kate Freer effective autumn 2026.	Large single-site BTR neighbourhoods (East Village, Elephant Central, New Maker Yards) where leasing, referencing, deposit and maintenance requests run at building level and a new CEO inherits a growt	Kate Freer — Chief Executive Officer (from autumn 2026)

The words. “Every tenancy now needs re-papering, every deposit registered inside 30 days, every certificate tracked to its own expiry, and every unit an EPC C plan by 2030. That is per-tenancy work that scales with the book, not with the branch. One desk runs the queue for a cluster of branches and logs every action per property.”

Healthcare — 15 firms

SECTION SIX — RANKED LAST ON PURPOSE

The caution is correct for the regulated core. Patient data is special-category, the gatekeepers are institutional, and a small vendor without the artefacts stalls in procurement. The names stay because the private end of the market is reachable, but they are not where the first money comes from.

UK GDPR Article 9 makes health data special-category: it needs an Article 9 condition, a DPIA, and a lawful basis the provider’s own DPO signs. NHS-facing work adds DSPT and DTAC expectations, and CQC-registered providers must be able to produce evidence against its single assessment framework on demand. A vendor turning up with a promising demo and no IG artefacts will lose six months to that queue.

The jobs themselves are real and countable: recall lists segmented by NICE CG19 intervals rather than blasted, DNA rebooking, PMI authorisation chasing between the insurer portal and the consultant diary, e-Referral queues, and rota cover at 200–500 sites. In private dentistry, physiotherapy, aesthetics and veterinary work, the payer is the patient or an insurer rather than the state, which removes most of the procurement weight.

If a healthcare deal is taken on, four things go in the first email, in writing: the agent works under the client's own DSPT and DPIA; there is no bulk export, screen-level work only; special-category data is processed only on the client's lawful basis with DPO sign-off; and no client data is used for model training.

THE MONEY

An NHS Band 3 administrator at the 2025/26 top step is £26,598; at roughly 20% on-cost that is about £31,918 loaded. A £60,000 desk therefore costs 1.88 times a Band 3 — the business case cannot be "cheaper than a receptionist". It has to be one desk doing the work of about two admin FTE across 10–25 sites, or recovering appointments that would otherwise be lost. Sizing ceilings for territory planning: mydentist at 500+ practices and one desk per 25 practices implies up to 20 desks; Care UK at 260 homes one desk per 25 implies about 10; Spire at 38 hospitals plus 55 clinics one desk per 12 implies about 8. Those are ceilings, not forecasts.

The Private Clinic Harley Street plus five regional clinics	Deposits, finance approvals, surgeon diaries, aftercare	Valentina Petrone — MD / CEO

The words. “I’m not asking you to put patient data anywhere new. The agent works inside the systems and permissions you already govern, under your DPIA, and logs every action. The job is the recall list and the DNA rebooking — measured on reappointments recovered, not on headcount.”

Field service — 15 firms

SECTION SEVEN

The job-control desk is the highest-volume manual sequence in the trades, and the firms already publish the volume themselves. Every inbound repair or planned visit is booked, rebooked after no-access, evidenced with a certificate and reconciled to a purchase order. Mears says it carries out thousands of repairs each day; Churches Fire produces a system condition report and non-compliance survey on every first visit; Ground Control sells planned maintenance plus field-generated extra works; Robert Heath schedules annual servicing and landlord gas safety checks across social housing stock. Awaab's Law Phase 2 timescales from 30 November 2026 raise the evidence bar in the social sector, and client portals now expect per-asset data to be current.

THE MONEY

A scheduler on £30,000 costs about £36,000 loaded at 20% on-cost — £3,000 a month. A three-person back-office pod (two schedulers plus a compliance chaser) is £108,000 a year. One desk at £60,000 is break-even against about 1.7 FTE of absorbed output, and £48,000 a year better than keeping the pod. Engineer-time route: 800 engineers × 5 minutes of admin a day is 66.7 hours a day; recover 20% at £45 an hour billable and it is £600 a day, about £132,000 over 220 working days.

FIRM	THE REPEATING JOB	WHO TO CALL
PFS Group Fire and security, Southend, 24-hour callout	Callout dispatch and certificate closure	—

The words. “Every visit generates paperwork: book it, rebook it when nobody’s in, certificate it, reconcile it to the order. That is a fixed sequence and it is eating your schedulers. One desk owns it for one contract region, and we measure visits completed without anyone re-keying.”

Logistics — 12 firms

SECTION EIGHT

Customs changed four times this year. Every change adds declaration data, and every declaration is typed twice.

HMRC took CDS down on 26–27 September 2026 for the Release 5.3 deployment and reported a service issue, resolved 29 September; declarations pre-lodged before the 28 March update had to be amended before arrival or were rejected. From 4 July 2026 EU EORI numbers can be declared in certain data elements, which changes entry templates and customer onboarding. The EU abolished its €150 duty de minimis on 1 July 2026 with a temporary €3 per-item duty to 1 July 2028, adding duty lines for UK forwarders moving e-commerce into the EU. The UK published draft legislation on low-value import reform on 13 July 2026, and HMRC’s consultation on mandatory registration of customs intermediaries closed 21 September 2026 with the outcome unpublished.

The mechanism never changes: commercial invoice and packing list data typed into CDS software, then re-typed into carrier or port portals, then back into the customer's tracker — and every amendment restarts the loop.

THE MONEY

A UK customs or operations administrator at about £32,000 salary plus roughly 25% employer on-cost is around £40,000 fully loaded (an assumption to confirm against the client's own payroll). One desk at £60,000 is roughly cost-neutral against 1.5 FTE and clearly cheaper than two. Then add the error line: every post-clearance amendment, every avoidable day of demurrage, and a mis-keyed entry that forces a C285 correction plus interest.

FIRM	THE REPEATING JOB	WHO TO CALL
★ Baxter Freight 84→113 staff, £37m+ turnover	Customs entry re-keying: invoice → CDS/TSS → carrier portal → tracker	Peter Isler — Managing Director
Woodland Group 25 locations, UK/USA/Asia/Europe	Booking, status and POD pulled from each carrier portal into the TMS	Kevin George Stevens — Director

FIRM	THE REPEATING JOB	WHO TO CALL
Fulfilmentcrowd 105+ staff, 17 warehouses, 250+ brands	Carrier exception and POD closure across 17 sites	Neil Midgley — Director of Operations (2026); Lee Thompson — CEO
Palletline 76 member companies, 97 depots	Hub reconciles status, exceptions and PODs from 76 different TMSs	Glenn Baker — Group COO
Walker Logistics 103 employees, £48.9m turnover, 20,000+ orders/day	Per-client export paperwork and customs data into 80+ countries	William Joseph Robert Walker — Director
Charles Kendall Freight UK, US, Middle East, Far East; customs as a named line	Entry data across four jurisdictions from the same customer files	Mark Melville Kendall — Director
John Good Group Five operating divisions incl. shipping and port agency	One shipment re-keyed two or three times across divisions	— (family directors; not published as a functional name)
Cargo Overseas 88 employees, Wythenshawe	Exception path only: held entries, lost statuses, PODs by email	— (sell exception handling, not automation)

FIRM	THE REPEATING JOB	WHO TO CALL
Allseas Global Logistics Oldham; breakbulk and out-of-gauge	Quote rebuilt per shipment from past jobs and surcharges	—
WM International Birmingham, est. 1989	Entry re-keying plus daily status run by the same small team	Michal Krzysztof Gierat — Director
Gophr Same-day courier network, nationwide	Photo PODs, failed deliveries and rebooks handled per job	Jean-Sebastien Robert — Director (founder)
Diamond Logistics Franchised network, 40+ sites	Centre reconciles PODs, surcharges and franchise invoices per site	Daniel Allin — Director

The words. “One entry, typed three times: into CDS, into the carrier portal, into the customer’s tracker. We put one employee on that loop, plus the status run that eats the same person’s afternoon. Measure it on entries per operator per day and the amendment rate.”

The five objections, answered

WHAT THEY SAY	WHAT IS TRUE
“We already have Copilot.”	Copilot drafts text inside a document. It does not log into the case management system, chase a third party, or close a file. Ask them what Copilot finished last week without a human driving it.
“Our system has no API.”	That is why this works. The desk drives the screens a person drives. No API, no migration, no vendor project — that is a two-hour deployment, not a two-year one.
“Who is accountable when it is wrong?”	A named human, per desk, in writing. Every action is logged and reversible, and anything consequential stops for approval. That is a stronger position than a member of staff who leaves no trail.
“It will make mistakes.”	Yes. So the job is scoped to work where a mistake is caught by a checkable rule, and the pilot measures the error rate before anyone commits.
“We tried RPA and it broke.”	RPA breaks because it scripts a fixed path. This reads the screen and adapts, and it escalates instead of failing silently. The pilot is where you prove that on your own material.

What we will not claim

No client has bought this as paid work yet, so no document here claims a result, a saving or a case study. There is no invented customer, no borrowed logo, no “one Bristol bureau” story. Demos are labelled illustrative. Prices are not final until Tyson decides them. Names of people come only from what the firm itself publishes; no email address or direct dial in this book was harvested or guessed.

That restraint is the commercial position, not a legal nicety. Every one of these buyers has been sold AI by three other people this year, and the one thing they can verify without trusting anybody is whether the claims are checkable.

Appendix — the people

Every named person sits in the sector table above, next to the job they own. This is the cover count, so a gap is visible rather than hidden. Roles as published on 21 October 2026 — verify before you dial, because people move.
