TWINTHOS · DEEP READ · OCTOBER 2026

You have been selling the wrong thing.

What Dewey actually is, what that makes Twinthos, and the one industry that fits the model better than any you have looked at.

Not an agent. A factory.

Dewey is Nick Vasilescu's agent. It does not just do the work — it builds the client's agent, puts it in their Slack, and then runs their support.

> “His agent Dewey builds the client's agent, onboards it into their Slack, and handles the customer support after.”
>
> COREY GANIM, 27 JULY 2026

The product is not the agent. The product is a repeatable machine that ships agents.

The bits that matter.

1. Templatise once, deploy forever. One template, cloned per client.
2. B2B2B never churns. Help the client resell it to their customers.
3. Sell to real businesses. £1m–£2m revenue minimum. They pay more and ask less.
4. Speed to value. Money wired, agent live by day two.

THE LINE THAT REFRAMES EVERYTHING

“Nobody pays $5K/month for an agent that doesn't make them money.”

A £1,500 project is not Twinthos.

The brain says Twinthos sells a Brain and a digital employee, from £5,000 a month.

A £1,500 build is a consultancy. It cannot scale, cannot be templated, and dies when you stop working.

MODEL	CEILING
£1,500 projects	Your calendar
Templated £5k/month	Your template

Every recruitment conversation in this chat was priced wrong.

Stop asking who has most admin.

Ask four questions. Most admin is the wrong first question.

1. Is the software the same at every firm?
2. Can the client resell the output to their own customers?
3. Does a law force them to keep the record?
4. Can the owner sign £5k a month alone?

Block management.

Managing agents for blocks of flats. Boring, unglamorous, and the best fit you have.

Managing agent firms	≈4,100
Units under ARMA members	1.23m
Block manager salary	£41,067
Software	MRI Qube

Sectorial (est. from SIC 68320); ARMA via Block Management UK; Indeed, 1,218 salaries, Sep 2026; MRI.

Four for four.

Same software. Qube PM is the incumbent at scale — 70+ ARMA members, Knight Frank, FirstPort, Touchstone. One build works everywhere.

They resell it. The agent's work goes straight to leaseholders. The agent absorbs more units, so the fee grows.

A law forces the record. More on the next page.

Owner decides. Managing agents are private firms, not councils.

The Building Safety Act.

A managing agent can be the Principal Accountable Person — legally responsible for a higher-risk building and its “Golden Thread” of information.

> “Compliance now has to be demonstrable, not just understood.”
>
> TETRA CONSULTING, 2026

That is a Brain problem, not a chatbot problem: persistent, versioned, auditable knowledge per building. You are not selling efficiency. You are selling legal defensibility.

Five sectors, scored.

SECTOR	FIT
Block management	Best
Conveyancing	Strong
Recruitment	Fair
Insurance broking	Fair
Payroll bureaus	Weak

Conveyancing: 25,039 SRA firms, but only 10,724 solicitors doing residential — a capacity problem, not a recruitment one. Strong fit, heavy liability.

Price the portfolio, not the seat.

PORTFOLIO	TEST PRICE
Under 1,000 units	£2,500/mo
1,000–5,000 units	£5,000/mo
5,000+ units	£10,000/mo

BE HONEST WITH YOURSELF

£5,000 a month has to cover the work of one and a half block managers. On a single small firm, price at £2,500.

Test prices to validate in the market — same status as company/pricing.md.

THE ONE THING

Sell the capacity to take more buildings.

Not the hours saved. A managing agent that can absorb 30% more units without hiring grows its fee line. That is a revenue pitch, and it never gets argued down to £1,500.

Every claim, traceable.
